We should automate the following processes:

- creation of the cluster
 - installing the custom locale/handling the locale issues
 - commands to create the cluster
 - add users, grant permissions
 - ...
- make a master database backup

I haven't reviewed our database setup docs, but the core idea here is to automate processes that are manual today. We will have to consider Windows support as well as Linux.

The best location for this (at this time) is probably in the Apache ant build scripting that we use (which is outside of FWD today).
