History

#1 - 04/03/2024 02:51 PM - Vladimir Tsichevski

Currently, if a test 4gl source includes both ABLUnit annotations and OUnit annotations, all these annotations are converted regardless of the unit testing flavor configured for this source.

Annotations specific for other flavor must be (silently or not) ignored by conversion rules.

Code Review Task Branch 8579a Revision 15120

I think the code would be simpler and easier to read if you create a variable named ablunit that is reset for every file, and initialize it using `execLib("is_abl_unit")`. Then use that instead of `execLib("is_abl_unit")`. You can also use `lablunit` for the OUnit cases.

The change is good.

What additional testing is needed?

I re-converted the ABLUnit TestOO.cls from #8574, and now it has no unit test Java annotation converted from the OJUnit annotation. I think, no other testing is needed.
